According to your email, I would like to thank you for sending us the “Final draft of vision document for consultation” document and congratulate for the work developed.

About my modest opinion, and considering I do not know if the subjects are also include in research objectives, in Challenge H – Radiation Protection in Society, I would like to suggest to have one point relate with the best way to communicate with patients that realize exames of diagnostic and therapeutics with ionizing radiation (considering not only society in general, but also patients).

Apart from this comment, I just found an error on page 41 which I correct here “new ways to produce medically used ionizing radiation and software tools including AI based methods”.

Finally, to show our willingness to participate ESTeSL is available to:

- Build and measure instruments to assess the expectations, needs and related issues of patients and the general population.
- Develop potentially optimising methods and technologies depending on requirements and needs of medical specialities (Challenge D).

Best Regards,

Lina Vieira

Dear SHARE members,

On behalf of MEENAS:

Dear members of the radiation protection research platforms,

In follow up of a letter 28 July 2020 prepared by MEENAS and representatives of several radiation protection institutions, the extended MEENAS group, we come to you to request your contribution. As announced in mentioned letter, the extended MEENAS group prepared, following the EC recommendation, a robust radiation protection co-funded partnership vision document. During summer holidays we have been working on that vision document according to the 'partnership-draft-guidance' (in annex) and with a few days delay (we promised the draft ready for the end of August) we present to you a draft document for comments.

Since we have a meeting with the EC on the 25th of September (for which we need to send the document the latest 18th of September), the extended MEENAS group has scheduled a meeting 16th of September to discuss your comments and adapt the present version of the vision document. We know it is short day but we would like to receive your comments by 14th of September evening. The comments that are received by that time can still be considered in the updated version that will be sent to the EC for discussion on 25th of September.

Very likely this discussion with the EC will also lead to modifications and that more advanced version will be send again for consultation. So if you would have no time now, you can still intervene at a later stage.

Please send your comments to sec@eu-meenas.net before 14 September evening.

We have a MEENAS website eu-meenas.net which is under development and where we will store all commented document so that all comments are available for everybody.

We will organise a feedback on how we dealt with the comments.

We would really appreciated your comments on this draft vision document. So thank you very much in advance.

With kind regards
